the ways to promote the Award in their region.

First of all, participants need to investigate the elements of a team via group activities. Our representatives, Tony and Tevin were designated to different groups for different missions. Through interview and practicum in different centres, participants investigated how the award could help adolescents with different backgrounds. For example, Tony visited a girl school, in which those students were of criminal record. Those students learnt different skills, such as haircut, cookery. Through this experience, we could investigate how the award could help to reduce criminal rate.

In order to maximise the learning outcome and provide a platform for sharing, each group presented their learning and findings in the forum and conference. As a result, participants could be inspired how the award could be a way to help different teenagers.

Participants wore their clothes to show their culture enthusiastically and introduced their conventional culture to others.

Last but not least, it's a good opportunities for cultural exchange. Participants tried their best to present their uniqueness and characteristics of their culture. People in different regions dressed their custom dressings for others to enjoy their culture. Tony and Tevin dressed Lion Dance clothes and Mao suit and attracted people to the photos with them!

In the closing ceremony, it is honourable to meet Prince Edward and received certificates from his hand.
